

UI CODE ASSISTANT

Group Members:-

- 1) Dhanush Neelakantan - G01503107
- 2) Rithvik Pranao Nagaraj - G01501815
- 3) Vidya Sagar Chandra Mohan - G01524370

Link:- <https://mason.gmu.edu/~rnagara2/index.html>

1. PROBLEM STATEMENT:-

In today's technological world, coding has great importance. Developers from all over the world use UI code assistants to improve their workflow by automating the generation of simple code snippets, analyzing existing code, suggesting improvements, and optimizing performance. The main target of our project is to develop an intuitive and efficient UI code assistant, thereby empowering developers by increasing their productivity and minimizing manual effort.

2. Design

2.1 PROBLEM EXPLANATION:-

The core idea of a UI Code Assistant is to boost and rationalize the workflows of developers worldwide by providing intelligent support for building user interfaces. It functions as a pair-programmer from the virtual world, enabling greater efficiency and precision for developers who rapidly prototype, design, and debug front-end components.

From the user's perspective, three main scenarios usually occur while employing the UI Code Assistant:

- CODE GENERATION:-

Rithvik is a web developer working on building a new site. In the course of establishing this site, building very minor code snippets for various UI components, such as a login form and input fields, is required. With the UI Code Assistant at his disposal, Rithvik can produce very simple elements quickly and concentrate on the actual design and logic of the site instead of writing repetitive boilerplate code.

- UI Design analysis:-

Sagar is an aspiring UI/UX developer. He tends to be unsure about the user friendliness and the aesthetics of his designs. It is here that the UI Code Assistant can come in handy to analyze the workability and usability of the designs he is creating. The assistant can give constructive feedback and suggestions for maximizing usability, aesthetics, and overall user experience.

- Code Efficiency Analysis:-

Dhanush has developed a complex user interface for his system, but he's encountering performance issues due to long runtimes and inefficient code execution. These delays are likely caused by redundant code, poor optimization, or resource-heavy components. By leveraging the AI-powered UI Code Assistant, Dhanush is able to analyze his code for bottlenecks, identify areas of redundancy, and receive suggestions to refactor and streamline his code. This helps him significantly improve the efficiency, responsiveness, and overall performance of the application.

2.2 Argument for the Utility of the UI Code Assistant:-

The UI Code Assistant is an indispensable resource throughout the UI development cycle in its entirety, fitting into the diverse needs of developers with varied skills and goals with absolute ease.

As an example, developers such as Rithvik are aided by the speed with which the assistant can produce boilerplate UI code. It accelerates the programming process by automating mundane tasks so that Rithvik can devote more time to creating individualistic design aspects and the main logic of his web application.

Meanwhile, UI design analysis allows novice designers like Sagar to discover how the assistant plays a valuable role in judging the usability and attractiveness of the designs. The assistant gives instant and actionable feedback that assists in enhancing user experience so that the final outcome is both usable and aesthetically pleasing.

Finally, in the analysis of code efficiency, experienced developers like Dhanush are given the power to address performance bottlenecks in the application. The assistant identifies inefficient code patterns and resource-intensive components and provides optimization techniques to make the interface more responsive and maintainable.

The above use cases reflect how the UI Code Assistant responds to varied user requirements ranging from automation to analysis and thus becomes an all-purpose and indispensable companion in contemporary UI work.

2.2.1 Prototype Description

The prototype consists of a web-based interface where developers can:

- Input a component name (e.g., “login form” or “shopping cart”) and receive generated HTML/JavaScript code.
- Paste or upload existing UI code or design for analysis.
- Receive optimization tips, accessibility feedback, and suggestions for component improvements.

2.3 Socratic Questioning:

2.3.1 Scenario 1: Code Generation

Clarification:-

1. In which programming language or framework are you wanting the code to be created?

The code should be developed based on HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, with a sole focus on front-end functionality.

2. What are the types of code snippets that the generated code supports?

The code is designed to support numerous front-end capabilities using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. This includes building login forms, checking user credentials, implementing add-to-cart features, creating interactive navigation menus, modal pop-ups, search bars with live filtering, form submissions with client-side validation, tabbed interfaces, interactive buttons with dynamic states, and handling client-side storage.

3. Is the intention to produce reusable components, or will there be separate implementations for every feature?

Ideally, the code employs reusable, modular components to speed up future development and maintain design consistency across the entire site

Challenges:-

1. What assumptions are we making regarding the technical competence of the users and how could these impact the usability of the code?

Presetting uniform technical skills among coders can create usability problems with generated code. Inexperienced programmers will struggle with complicated code structures, whereas experienced ones will find very simplified code inefficient. As an illustration, empirical evidence has suggested that tools such as GitHub Copilot generate code that novice programmers are hard-pressed to interpret and read, creating usability issues. Hence, designing code generation tools that support mixed skill levels is important to promote overall usability.

2. Are we assuming that users will always interact with the system as intended?

Assuming that users will always adhere to the intended interaction patterns can cause one to overlook future misuse or alternative system uses. We should expect and provide support for many user behaviors, including unintentional interactions, to make the system resilient and user-friendly.

3. How would utilizing libraries or plugins as options differ from creating custom code?

Libraries or plugins can accelerate development and provide stable, user-tested solutions but can restrict customization and introduce external dependence.

Alternative Perspectives:

1. Which wider stakeholder requirements like accessibility and testability should be incorporated into the code generation process?

Aside from functionality, the code generated should be accessibility compliant and easy to test. In doing so, these considerations help ensure the tool delivers production-ready code that serves a broader user base and meets diverse project demands.

2. In what ways could the use of UI-generated code influence developers' skill progress, and can the tool be made to foster learning alongside speed?

If developers become too dependent on automated code, their coding and problem-solving skills may stagnate. Adding educational commentary and code explanations can transform the tool into a learning resource—encouraging both productivity and continuous skill development.

3. How does the selection of a programming language or frontend framework influence integration with existing code and future system scalability?

Utilizing modern frameworks like React and MongoDB can greatly enhance a project's scalability and integration potential. React's component-based model makes it easy to build reusable and modular UI elements that plug into existing codebases, while MongoDB's schema-less structure allows for rapid iteration and growth. These tools are generally more adaptable to evolving project needs compared to traditional approaches.

Implications and consequences of the design:-

1. What are the risks of relying on auto-generated code without manual testing?

Depending solely on auto-generated code can lead to unexpected bugs and performance issues that may only emerge once in production—undermining system stability and user trust.

2. How could dependence on code generation impact team collaboration and developer learning?

A heavy reliance on automation can result in a decline in coding skills across the team and make collaborative debugging more difficult when members lack understanding of the underlying logic.

3. What are the implications if code generation is not properly documented?

Poor documentation can slow down the onboarding process for new developers and make future modifications more time-consuming, ultimately hindering development progress.

2.3.2 Scenario 2: UI Design analysis

Clarification:-

Which specific interactions are most important to user engagement?

Key interactions that support user engagement include interactive buttons, smooth form submissions, and adaptive menus. Interactive buttons enhance usability by offering instant visual feedback, guiding users through actions, and minimizing confusion.

Which navigation methods should users use on a regular basis?

Touch gestures, taps, swipe gestures, and scrolling are the main interaction methods. These allow users to naturally move through screens, interact with various content types, and complete tasks efficiently.

Which visual style takes precedence in the current UI?

The current UI design favors minimalist principles, emphasizing clarity, simplicity, and user-friendliness. This style removes unnecessary elements to streamline the user experience using negative space, clean typography, and intuitive navigation for a distraction-free interaction.

Challenges:-

How can complex UI elements influence usability?

Complex UI components can significantly increase cognitive load by requiring users to process more information, navigate complex workflows, or deal with cluttered visuals. This often leads to confusion, frustration, and task abandonment, particularly for novice users. Streamlining design with clear visual hierarchies, progressive disclosure, and intuitive navigation helps reduce these challenges without compromising functionality.

Might simplicity of design overlook necessary user guidance?

Yes, over-simplification can remove essential visual cues and instructions, which can hurt intuitive understanding.

What are the assumptions made regarding user preferences?

Designers often assume users prefer simple interfaces, but that's not always true. Some users might find minimalist layouts disorienting if the navigation structure lacks clarity.

Alternative perspective:-

Which aspects of cognitive psychology could make our app more intuitive?

To improve your app's intuitiveness, leverage cognitive psychology principles like visual hierarchy, cognitive load reduction, and pattern recognition. Visual hierarchy directs user attention to key elements, while reducing cognitive load simplifies decision-making by limiting choices and using familiar patterns. Pattern recognition helps users anticipate how the interface will behave, making navigation feel more natural and user-friendly.

Could interactive animations positively influence user experience?

Absolutely. Interactive animations can greatly enhance the user experience by offering clear feedback, easing uncertainty, and boosting engagement. For instance, small animations—like a button changing color or a checkmark appearing after an action—let users know their input was successful. This builds trust and increases user satisfaction.

What might we learn from examining minimalist vs. maximalist design philosophies?

Exploring both minimalist and maximalist design approaches helps identify the right balance between simplicity and richness. Minimalism emphasizes clarity and function, stripping away distractions for a cleaner experience. On the other hand, maximalism embraces complexity and vibrant visuals, which can stimulate creativity and emotional engagement.

Implications and consequences:-

What are the probable financial implications of significant UI redesigns?

Major UI redesigns can increase costs for development, testing, and support. However, these investments may lead to strong returns by improving user retention and satisfaction over time.

May resource dedication to UI enhancements retard some priority projects?

Yes, allocating resources to UI upgrades can potentially delay other high-priority initiatives. Time, budget, and team focus may shift away from core features or backend improvements. While improving the interface is crucial, it requires careful planning to avoid setbacks elsewhere.

How would long-term user engagement be influenced by design advancements?

Design improvements that boost usability and delight create a smoother, more enjoyable experience. This encourages users to come back consistently. By removing friction and increasing satisfaction, better UI design deepens loyalty and strengthens engagement—ultimately supporting long-term growth and performance.

2.3.3 Code efficiency:-

Clarification:-

1. How do you currently assess performance in the UI code?

UI performance is assessed using metrics like load times, rendering speed, memory usage, and CPU consumption across different devices and network conditions.

2. What tools or methods are you using to identify inefficiencies?

Tools such as browser dev tools, performance profiling, and code analysis utilities are used to detect inefficiencies.

3. Are there existing benchmarks or standards the UI code currently adheres to?

Yes, the UI code is designed to meet industry benchmarks for responsiveness, accessibility, and user experience. Standard testing frameworks like Selenium and jest are typically used to measure and validate these standards effectively.

Challenges:-

1. What evidence do we have that readability is more important than raw performance in this context?

Readability is important for maintainability, yes but in performance on critical paths like rendering or data crunching this assumption may result in bottlenecks. We need context-driven decisions, not one-size-fits-all rules.

2. Have we questioned whether our framework or language is the best fit for the performance requirements?

Not so often, We default to what's popular or familiar. But for tasks like real-time processing or high-frequency trading, the tech stack itself may be the limiting factor.

3. Why do we assume that optimizing code now is "premature"?

The adage "premature optimization is the root of all evil" is often misapplied; it's meant to warn against optimizing blindly, not to avoid it entirely. In reality, targeted optimization based on profiling and real usage data especially in performance-critical areas is both necessary and efficient.

Alternative perspective:-

1. Is it possible that our development culture prioritizes feature delivery over code efficiency?

A culture focused solely on rapid feature delivery may inadvertently sideline performance considerations. Integrating efficiency into the development process ensures that new features are both functional and performant.

2. Could prioritizing code readability over performance lead to long-term inefficiencies?

While readable code facilitates maintenance and collaboration, excessive emphasis on readability might result in overlooked performance bottlenecks. Striking a balance ensures that clarity doesn't come at the expense of efficiency.

3. Are we neglecting the potential performance gains from parallel processing due to perceived complexity?

Parallel processing can significantly enhance performance, but concerns about complexity may deter its implementation. Investing in understanding and applying parallelism where appropriate can yield substantial benefits.

Implications and consequences:-

1. What are the potential risks of relying heavily on third-party libraries for performance improvements?

While third-party libraries can offer quick performance gains, they may introduce dependencies that are outside the team's control. Issues such as deprecated support, security vulnerabilities, or incompatibilities with future system updates can arise, potentially leading to significant refactoring or system instability.

2. How might early optimization efforts impact future development cycles?

Engaging in premature optimization can complicate the codebase, making it harder to understand and modify. This complexity may hinder future development, as subsequent developers might struggle with intricate, performance-focused code that lacks clarity, leading to increased maintenance efforts and potential errors.

3. What are the implications of not considering scalability during code efficiency analysis?

Neglecting scalability can result in a system that performs adequately under current conditions but fails under increased load or data volume. This oversight may necessitate extensive redesigns in the future to accommodate growth, incurring higher costs and potential service disruptions.

Argument:-

1. Clarification:-

When we say automation will "save time," what specific tasks are we referring to?

Mostly repetitive coding tasks like scaffolding, boilerplate generation, or basic code snippets and not complex logic, debugging, or architectural decisions.

2. Challenges:-

Are we assuming that developers won't need to understand or modify the generated code?

Yes, and that's a risky assumption. In practice, developers often need to review, debug, and adapt their UI Design or code, especially when edge cases or custom requirements arise.

3. Alternative perspective:-

From the perspective of junior developers, could automation hinder learning and skill development?

Yes. If juniors rely too heavily on code generators, they might miss out on core programming fundamentals and the ability to think algorithmically — skills that automation can't replace.

4. Implications and consequences:-

What potential risks or limitations might arise from relying too heavily on automated code generation tools?

Over-reliance on automation can lead to reduced developer understanding of the codebase, increased difficulty in debugging, and potential mismatches between generated logic and specific business requirements. It can also introduce hidden technical debt if the tools produce bloated or inefficient code that isn't rigorously reviewed.

3. Implementation:-

Frontend: HTML,css, Bootstrap, JavaScript, jquery.

Unit Testing:- Jest

Integration Testing:- Selenium

3.1 Application pages:-

3.1.1 Index.html:-

1. Serves as the central hub of the application.
2. Includes navigation to two pages: 'Generate HTML/CSS Code' and 'Analyze UI Design/code'.
3. Generate HTML/CSS Code: This feature creates tailored HTML and CSS code snippets to meet your specific design requirements.
4. Analyze UI Design/Code: This tool evaluates your UI design and code, offering recommendations to enhance both design aesthetics and code efficiency.

3.1.2 Generate.html:-

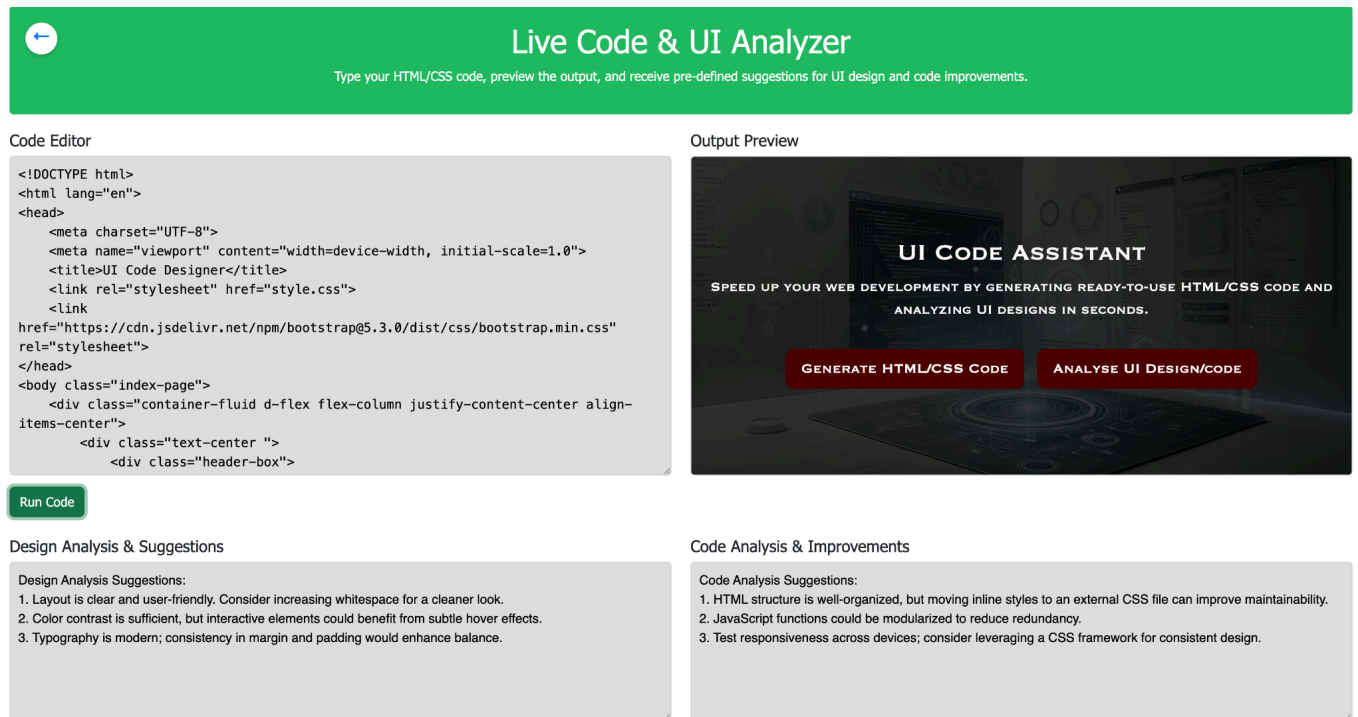

1. Includes a Generate tab where you can enter prompts such as "Login" or "Shopping Cart" to automatically generate code. (Type in 'Login' or 'Shopping Cart' to generate the code)
2. Offers an Edit option that allows you to modify the generated code to match your desired output.

3. Provides a Preview feature to view the output of your code.

3.1.3 Design.html:-

1. Performs two key operations on your code: code efficiency analysis and UI design evaluation.
2. Provides a preview of the output generated by your code.
3. Offers design suggestions to enhance the user interface and user experience.
4. Analyzes your code and delivers actionable improvement recommendations.

3.1.4 Unit Tests Using Jest:-

```
UI_code_designer > componentGenerator.test.js > @ describe('Component Generator') callback > @ test('alerts error for invalid component input') callback
21 describe("Component Generator", () => {
77 test("populates code editor with shopping_cart snippet on generate button click", () => {
81   jest.runAllTimers();
82   expect(document.getElementById("code-editor").value).toBe("Test Shopping Cart Code");
83 });
84
85 test("alerts error for invalid component input", () => {
86   // Spy on window.alert.
87   const alertSpy = jest.spyOn(window, "alert").mockImplementation(() => {});
88   // Set input to an invalid component.
89   document.getElementById("component-input").value = "Invalid";
90   document.getElementById("generate-btn").click();
91   // Verify that alert was called with the expected error message.
92   expect(alertSpy).toHaveBeenCalledWith("No specific code is available for the given component");
93   alertSpy.mockRestore();
94 });
95 });
96

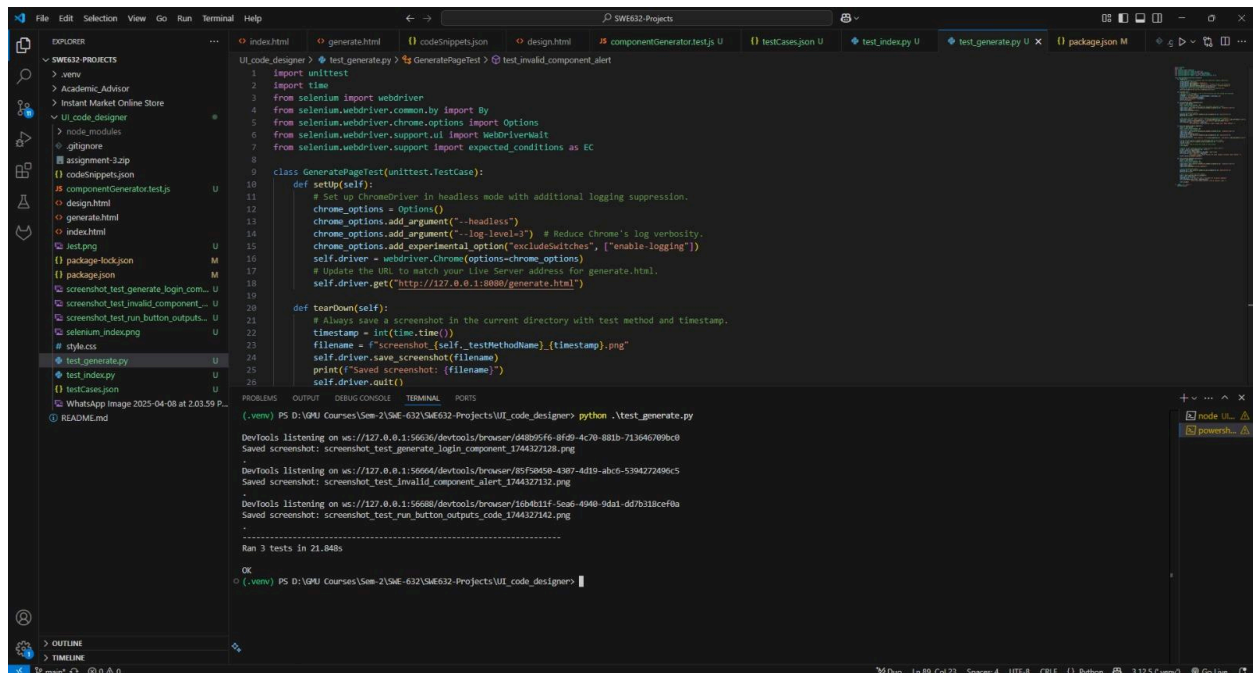

PROBLEMS OUTPUT DEBUG CONSOLE TERMINAL PORTS
PS D:\VGMU Courses\Sem-2\SEM-632\SW632-Projects\UI_code_designer> npm test > ui_code_designer@1.0.0 test
> jest

(node:24870) [DEP0040] DeprecationWarning: The 'punycode' module is deprecated. Please use a userland alternative instead.
(Use 'node --trace-deprecation ...' to show where the warning was created)
PASS ./componentGenerator.test.js
  Component Generator
    ✓ populates code editor with login snippet on generate button click (57 ms)
    ✓ populates code editor with shopping_cart snippet on generate button click (8 ms)
    ✓ alerts error for invalid component input (7 ms)

Test Suites: 1 passed, 1 total
Tests: 3 passed, 3 total
Snapshots: 0 total
Time: 1.777 s
Ran all test suites.
```

3.1.5 Integration tests using Selenium (python):-

Selenium Testing for Generate.html:-

```
UI_code_designer > test_generate.py > GeneratePageTest > test_invalid_component_alert
1 import unittest
2 import time
3 from selenium import webdriver
4 from selenium.webdriver.common.by import By
5 from selenium.webdriver.chrome.options import Options
6 from selenium.webdriver.support.ui import WebDriverWait
7 from selenium.webdriver.support import expected_conditions as EC
8
9 class GeneratePageTest(unittest.TestCase):
10     def setUp(self):
11         # Set up ChromeDriver in headless mode with additional logging suppression.
12         chrome_options = Options()
13         chrome_options.add_argument("--headless")
14         chrome_options.add_argument("--log-level=3") # Reduce Chrome's log verbosity.
15         chrome_options.add_experimental_option("excludeSwitches", ["enable-logging"])
16         self.driver = webdriver.Chrome(options=chrome_options)
17         # Update the URL to match your Live Server address for generate.html.
18         self.driver.get("http://127.0.0.1:8080/generate.html")
19
20     def tearDown(self):
21         # Always save a screenshot in the current directory with test method and timestamp.
22         timestamp = int(time.time())
23         filename = f"screenshot_{self.testMethodname}_{timestamp}.png"
24         self.driver.save_screenshot(filename)
25         print(f"Saved screenshot: {filename}")
26         self.driver.quit()
27
28     def test_invalid_component_alert(self):
29         # Test that an alert is shown when an invalid component is entered.
30         input_field = self.driver.find_element(By.ID, "component-input")
31         input_field.clear()
32         input_field.send_keys("Invalid")
33         generate_btn = self.driver.find_element(By.ID, "generate-btn")
34         generate_btn.click()
35         alert = self.driver.switch_to.alert
36         alert_text = alert.text
37         self.assertEqual(alert_text, "No specific code is available for the given component")
38         alert.accept()
39
40     def test_run_button_outputs_code(self):
41         # Test that the run button outputs the correct code.
42         input_field = self.driver.find_element(By.ID, "component-input")
43         input_field.clear()
44         input_field.send_keys("Test Shopping Cart Code")
45         generate_btn = self.driver.find_element(By.ID, "generate-btn")
46         generate_btn.click()
47         code_editor = self.driver.find_element(By.ID, "code-editor")
48         code = code_editor.get_attribute("value")
49         self.assertEqual(code, "Test Shopping Cart Code")
50
51 if __name__ == '__main__':
52     unittest.main()
```

```
(.venv) PS D:\VGMU Courses\Sem-2\SEM-632\SW632-Projects\UI_code_designer> python .test_generate.py
DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:56636/devtools/browser/544805f6-8f49-4c70-881b-713646789bc0
Saved screenshot: screenshot_test_generate_login_component_1744327128.png
DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:56664/devtools/browser/5f520528-4387-4d19-abcd-5394272496c5
Saved screenshot: screenshot_test_invalid_component_alert_1744327132.png
DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:56688/devtools/browser/16b4b11f-5eae-4940-9da1-df7b31bce9ba
Saved screenshot: screenshot_test_run_button_outputs_code_1744327142.png
.....
Ran 3 tests in 21.84bs
OK
(.venv) PS D:\VGMU Courses\Sem-2\SEM-632\SW632-Projects\UI_code_designer>
```

Component Generator

Home

invalid_component

Generate

Code Editor

Edit

Run

Output Window

Component Generator

HomeGenerate

Code Editor

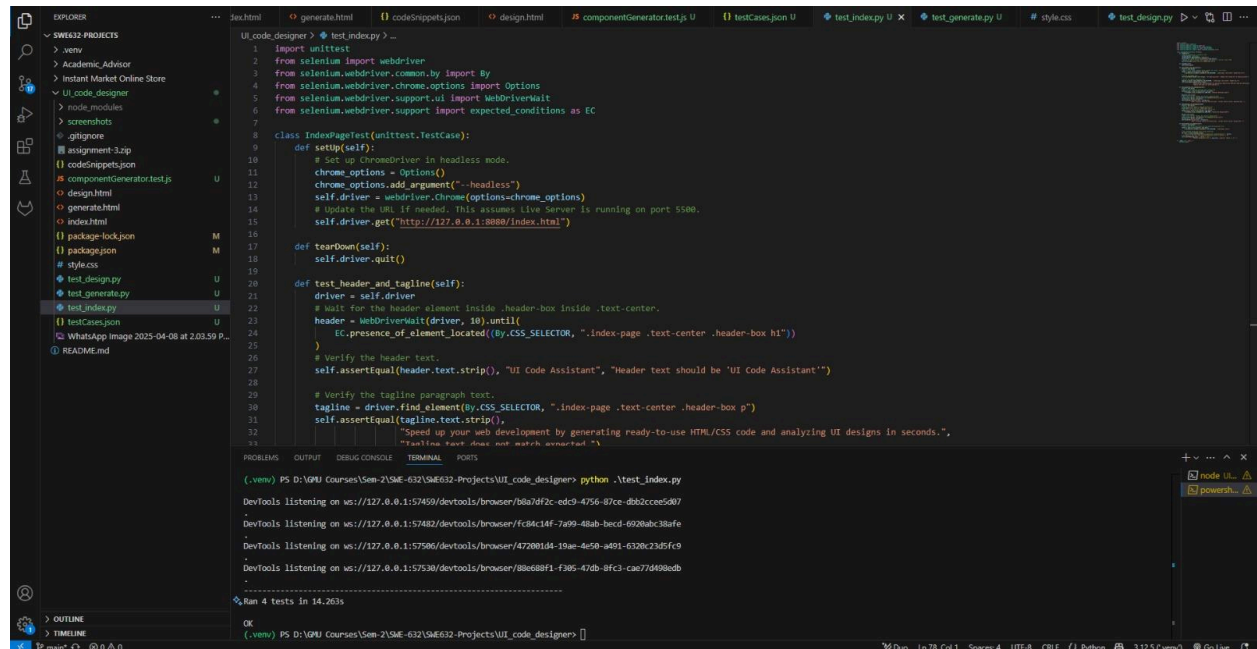

```
<form>

    <label for='email'>Email address:
  </label>
  <input type='email' clas
```

EditRun

Output Window

Email address:</

Selenium Testing for Index.html

```
UI_code_designer > test_index.py > ...
1 import unittest
2 from selenium import webdriver
3 from selenium.webdriver.common.by import By
4 from selenium.webdriver.chrome.options import Options
5 from selenium.webdriver.support.ui import WebDriverWait
6 from selenium.webdriver.support import expected_conditions as EC
7
8 class IndexPageTest(unittest.TestCase):
9     def setUp(self):
10         # Set up ChromeDriver in headless mode.
11         chrome_options = Options()
12         chrome_options.add_argument("--headless")
13         self.driver = webdriver.Chrome(options=chrome_options)
14         # Update the URL if needed. This assumes Live Server is running on port 5500.
15         self.driver.get("http://127.0.0.1:5500/index.html")
16
17     def tearDown(self):
18         self.driver.quit()
19
20     def test_header_and_tagline(self):
21         driver = self.driver
22         # Wait for the header element inside .header-box inside .text-center.
23         header = WebDriverWait(driver, 10).until(
24             EC.presence_of_element_located((By.CSS_SELECTOR, ".index-page .text-center .header-box h1"))
25         )
26         # Verify the header text.
27         self.assertEqual(header.text.strip(), "UI Code Assistant", "Header text should be 'UI Code Assistant'")
28
29         # Verify the tagline paragraph text.
30         tagline = driver.find_element(By.CSS_SELECTOR, ".index-page .text-center .header-box p")
31         self.assertEqual(tagline.text.strip(),
32             "Speed up your web development by generating ready-to-use HTML/CSS code and analyzing UI designs in seconds.",
33             "Tagline text does not match expected text")
34
35 if __name__ == '__main__':
36     unittest.main()
```

PROBLEMS OUTPUT DEBUG CONSOLE TERMINAL PORTS

(.venv) PS D:\VNU Courses\Sem-2\SEM-632\SEM632-Projects\UI_code_designer> python .\test_index.py

DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:57459/devtools/browser/b1a7d2c-edc9-4d56-87ce-dbb2ccce5d07

DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:57482/devtools/browser/fc8c14f-7a99-4ba9-becd-692ab3d8afe

DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:57506/devtools/browser/428081d4-19ae-4e58-a491-6326c23d5fc9

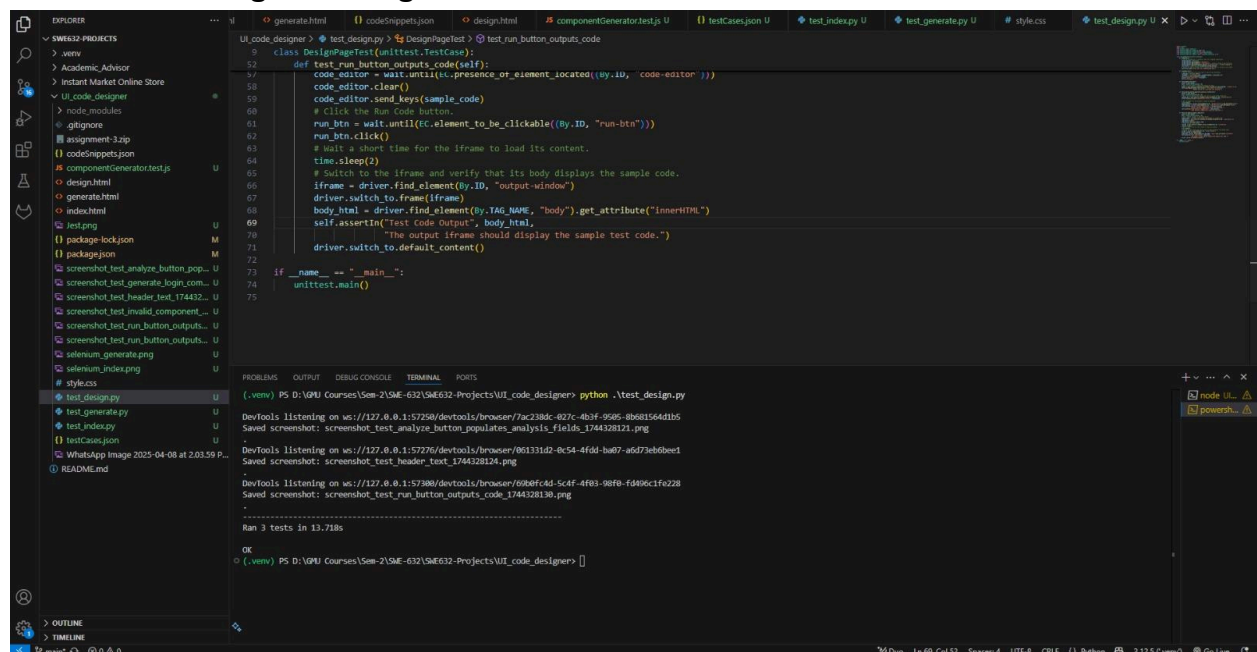

DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:57530/devtools/browser/88e68f1-f385-43db-8fcd-cae7d498ebd

Ran 4 tests in 14.26s

OK

(.venv) PS D:\VNU Courses\Sem-2\SEM-632\SEM632-Projects\UI_code_designer>

Selenium Testing for Design.html

```
UI_code_designer > test_design.py > DesignPageTest > test_run_button_outputs_code
52 class DesignPageTest(unittest.TestCase):
53     def test_run_button_outputs_code(self):
54         code_editor = WebDriverWait(self.driver, 10).until( 55             EC.presence_of_element_located((By.ID, "code-editor")))
56         code_editor.clear()
57         code_editor.send_keys(sample_code)
58         # Click the Run Code button.
59         run_btn = WebDriverWait(self.driver, 10).until( 60             EC.element_to_be_clickable((By.ID, "run-btn")))
61         run_btn.click()
62         # Wait a short time for the iframe to load its content.
63         time.sleep(2)
64         # Switch to the iframe and verify that its body displays the sample code.
65         iframe = driver.find_element(By.ID, "output-window")
66         driver.switch_to.frame(iframe)
67         body_html = driver.find_element(By.TAG_NAME, "body").get_attribute("innerHTML")
68         self.assertEqual("test Code Output", body_html,
69             "The output iframe should display the sample test code.")
70         driver.switch_to.default_content()
71
72 if __name__ == '__main__':
73     unittest.main()
```

PROBLEMS OUTPUT DEBUG CONSOLE TERMINAL PORTS

(.venv) PS D:\VNU Courses\Sem-2\SEM-632\SEM632-Projects\UI_code_designer> python .\test_design.py

DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:57258/devtools/browser/7ac238dc-827c-4b3f-9585-8b681564d1b5

Saved screenshot: screenshot_test_analyze_button_populates_analysis_fields_1744328121.png

DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:57276/devtools/browser/861331d2-8c54-4fd4-ba07-a6d7eb0be1

Saved screenshot: screenshot_test_header_text_1744328124.png

DevTools listening on ws://127.0.0.1:57380/devtools/browser/6f8fcd4d-5caf-4f83-98f8-fd490c1fa228

Saved screenshot: screenshot_test_run_button_outputs_code_1744328130.png

Ran 3 tests in 13.718s

OK

(.venv) PS D:\VNU Courses\Sem-2\SEM-632\SEM632-Projects\UI_code_designer>

Live Code & UI Analyzer

Type your HTML/CSS code, preview the output, and receive pre-defined suggestions for UI design and code improvements.

Code Editor

```
<h2>Test Code Output</h2>This is a test.

```

Run Code

Output Preview

Test Code Output

This is a test.

Design Analysis & Suggestions

Design analysis will be displayed here...

Code Analysis & Improvements

Code analysis will be displayed here...

Live Code & UI Analyzer

Type your HTML/CSS code, preview the output, and receive pre-defined suggestions for UI design and code improvements.

Code Editor

Enter your HTML/CSS code here

Run Code

Output Preview

Design Analysis & Suggestions

Design analysis will be displayed here...

Code Analysis & Improvements

Code analysis will be displayed here...

Live Code & UI Analyzer

Type your HTML/CSS code, preview the output, and receive pre-defined suggestions for UI design and code improvements.

Live Code & UI Analyzer

Type your HTML/CSS code, preview the output, and receive pre-defined suggestions for UI design and code improvements.

Code Editor

Run Code

Output Preview

Design Analysis & Suggestions

Design Analysis Suggestions:

- Design Analysis Suggestions:
1. Layout is clear and user-friendly. Consider increasing whitespace for a cleaner look.
 2. Color contrast is sufficient, but interactive elements could benefit from subtle hover effects.

Code Analysis & Improvements

Code Analysis Suggestions:

- Code Analysis Suggestions:
1. HTML structure is well-organized, but moving inline styles to an external CSS file can improve maintainability.
 2. JavaScript functions could be modularized to reduce redundancy.

Selenium Testing using extension:-

[illegible]

Interface metrics:-

Signifier:-

Bootstrap class components enhance the user interface by making it more intuitive and user-friendly. Signifiers are consistently applied across both the code generation and UI design portals to guide users smoothly through the system. Clearly labeled buttons, well-structured menus, and intuitive visual cues ensure that interactions are seamless and natural.

Affordance:

We've integrated interactive elements throughout multiple modules to enhance usability and streamline navigation. Clickable options are strategically placed to allow users to move fluidly between different sections of the portal. In addition, we've enabled keyboard input functionality within the code editor, empowering users to directly modify or write code in real time.

Gulf of Execution:

To minimize the gap between user intent and available system actions, we introduced a dedicated 'Home' button and a 'Back' ('←') button. These navigation elements provide users with a straightforward way to return to the homepage, ensuring quick and effortless reorientation within the portal. By aligning system controls with user expectations, we've made the navigation experience more intuitive and goal-driven.

Gulf of Evaluation:

To support users in understanding the outcomes of their actions, the system provides clear and contextual suggestions. These include design improvement tips within the UI portal and recommendations to enhance code efficiency in the editor. By offering this feedback directly within the interface, users can better evaluate their current work and make informed adjustments.

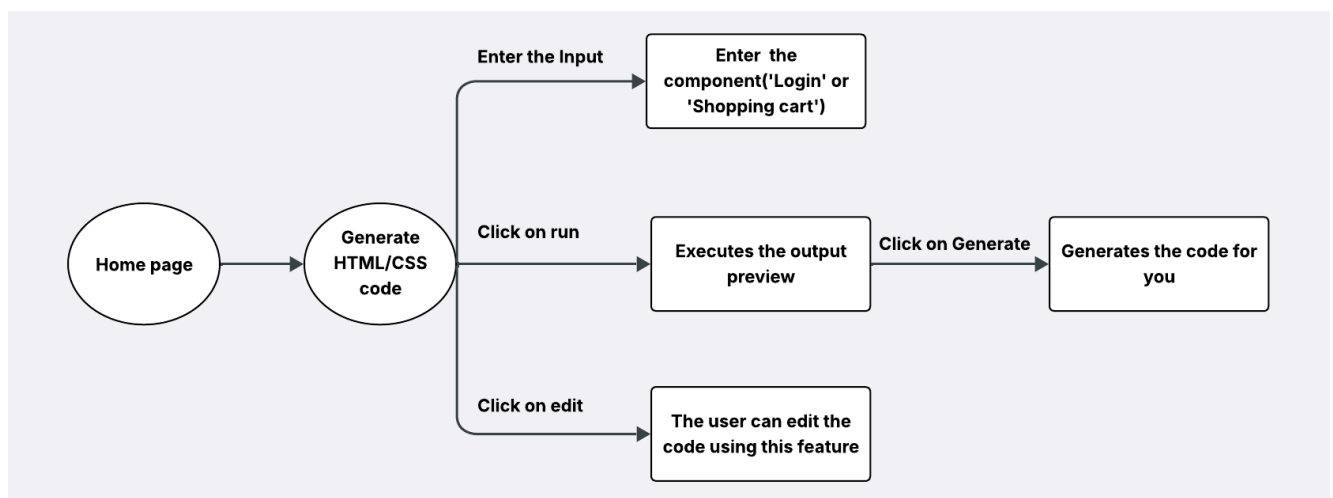

Interface Architecture:-

States and Events:-

States and Events for Home page:-

States and Events for Generate code page:-

States and Events for Design code and analysis page:-

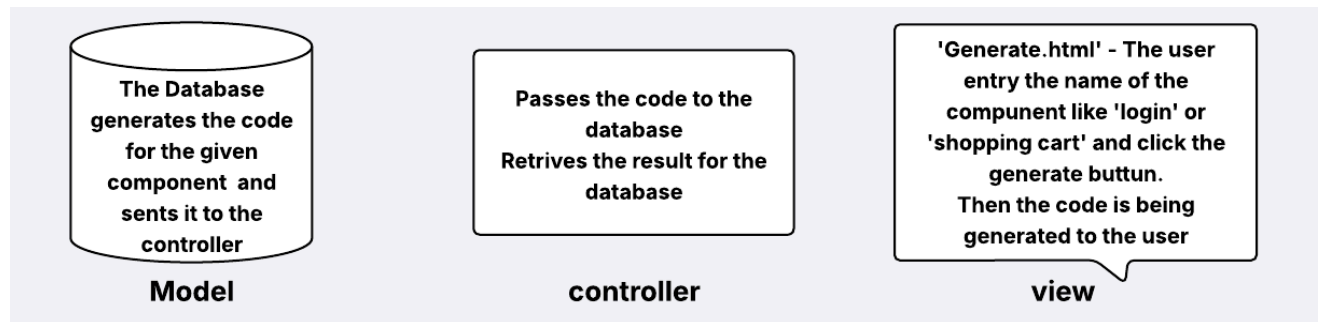

Hierarchical architecture:-

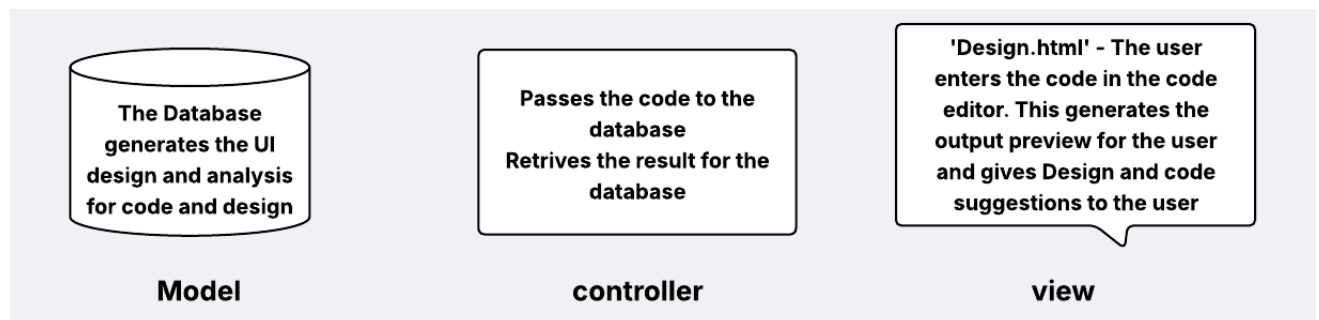

Model View controller:

MVC for Generate code page:-

MVC for UI Code and design Page:-

Pointing:-

The website uses a clean and simple design that makes it easy for people to use. One helpful feature is that the buttons slightly rise or “pop up” when you move your mouse over them.

This small effect makes a big difference. It helps people see where to click and makes the buttons feel easier to use. This is where Fitts’s Law comes in.

Fitts’s Law says that the easier something is to reach and the bigger it looks, the faster and more accurately people can click on it. When the button rises on hover, it appears larger and more clickable—making the user’s experience smoother and more intuitive.